Republican Convention.

Coming events cast their shadow before.

The Republican State Convention of Maine is to be held at Bangor on the 3rd of June and the evidence of the editor to the purpose of the party this year. With no contest on hand, though contested on all sides that the nomination for Governor was to be made without opposition, it would not have been surprising had the convention been highly attended. But such was not the case. Strong delegations of the representative men of the party all over the State came here to manifest their zeal in the coming cause, there being present 1,111 out of the 1,311 delegates to which the convention was entitled.

It was a gathering of which the party may well feel proud. Indeed it was freely admitted by members of the opposite party who were interested spectator. The unanimous nomination of Hon. Llewellyn Powers is a distinct victory conferred and one that cannot fail to be highly gratifying to the candidate as well as to his friends scattered all over Maine. In selecting Mr. Powers the convention has named as the next Governor one who will assume the executive chair with a complete knowledge of the affairs of the State.

He has served with distinguished ability as a member of the Legislature occupying the Speaker's chair at the last session, thus obtaining a comprehensive grasp of the details of the business of the State that will not only prove of immense advantage to himself but of considerable value to the people.

Mr. Powers needs no introduction. A native of Maine, he has passed with the exception of a few years, in his life in this State. He is known as a business man of wide experience and great significance, and a lawyer of well recognized ability. He was County Attorney of Aroostook for some years, the first Collector of Customs in the Aroostook

District, a member of Congress from this district and later a member of the Legislature as stated above. That he will be elected Governor of the State in September next by a rousing majority admits of no question.

The platform like the party is made of sound material. Maine Republicans entertain positive views concerning all matters affecting the public weal and always express themselves in a straightforward manner. On the two great questions now particularly interesting the public, the tariff and currency the platform leaves nothing to be desired. These points are specific and will command them votes to the hearty approval of the people. This is a Republican year and the voters are preparing to rally around the standard of solid honest men who represent a policy of renewed confidence and restored prosperity.

In another place we publish the details of the convention and commend the report to the careful attention of our readers. The speeches beginning with that of Chairman Sewall and concluding with the very able acceptance of Mr.

Powers were of a high order and will warrant a careful perusal. The Republicans of Maine have opened the campaign with a degree of enthusiasm and party unity that means a clean sweep all along the line.

May Receipts.

The month of May drives another nail into the coffin of the Wilson law. With a single exception, the country has not seen such small receipts since May for more than a decade. In only one month of the year, May, 1895, the internal revenue and miscellaneous revenue total was $11,550,100, and that total, in- cluding cluding the McKinley law, was $11,486,717.

Compared with May of last year, there is a falling off in customs and a falling off in the total.

The total receipts in May, 1895, were $15,474,456 over the Wilson law; those of May, 1896, under the McKinley law, were $15,131,383;

those of May, 1896, under the McKinley

law, were $11,196,741.

Thus it will be seen that, whatever the receipts of this month may be, the

the same month of the previous year.

The total receipts in May, 1895, were $16,529,016.

Those of May, 1896, under the McKinley

law, were $15,256,057.

Those of May, 1896, under the Wilson law, were $15,131,383.

Those of May, 1896, under the McKinley

law, were $11,196,741.

Thus it will be seen that, whatever the

The price of strawberries has been gradually dropping and now they can be bought at quite a reasonable figure, two boxes for a quarter being yesterday the lot. It will be long before native berries are in the market.

The case of Chas'l's Froug, of Vass, who was arrested Monday on suspicion of having been the perpetrator or the dynamite outrage at Vass Friday night, has not yet been brought up in the municipal court owing to the inability of Mrs. D'Amato to appear in court on account of her injuries. S. Colman's bill, before which much has been written, was introduced at Buckport and its inventor and owner will continue the experiments in investigation with it in which he was engaged last fall. The idea of the invention, as has been previously explained, is a craft that can be run on either water or land and Mr. Colman has made some improvements in his original design during the past winter that he thinks will be valuable.

Extensive repairs are to be made on the Linerette chaise at the hospital and it is expected that about $2,000 will be expended on the structure before the work is completed. It is now thought that several memorial windows will be put in by the relatives of deceased members. The seats are to be easily upholstered, a new carpet put down and an improved arrangement of electric lights effected. The improvement will add greatly to the appearance of the auditorium.

The working of mine track room for the Maine Central Railroad at the Exchange street yard has been a big job and it is not done yet. The entire new space has been blasted out of solid rock and it has necessarily been slow work. The job is completed on the lower side of the toll bridge and the crew is now at work above it. The Cutters' house, which was on railroad land, has been torn down and the men are now excavating at that point. The work will make room for several new side tracks and a new arrangement of tracks for trains, which will much needed.

The programme of the day will consist of inspection of the grounds and buildings of the college and addresses by members of the faculty.
